cue when hard pressed. In the new countries opened up by the Bagdad road this friendship may be productive of great results, benefiting and strengthening German commerce no less than the political aspects of Turkey. When this comes about, those nations who thought it great sport to quarrel with the proverbial "sick man," will see the mistake they made. And the United States and

A GREAT COTTON COUNTRY. I agree with Councillor of Legation Baron Oppenheim, who recently returned from parlors there after studying land and people for a period of several years, that the country crossed by the Bagdad Railway line-I mean the whole of it as far as it's Turkish, its length and breadth-is eminently fit for cotton culture. The plant is indigenous to the soil and has been cultivated there to a greater or less extent from prehistoric

ENTHUSIASTIC TRAVELERS. As stated, all travelers, who, like myself, gained an intimate knowledge of land and people, are enthusiastic about their future. I take issue with them, however, as to the time required for the regeneration of these

The Orient moves slowly and reforms cannot be introduced in a day. The land, as said, is ideal cotton-growing soil, but needs irrigation. In olden times this was supplied by 120,000 artificial waterways, fed by the Euphrates and Tigris. Some travelers claim that they are still there, that they

The great direct benefit the commerce of the world derives from the construction of the mail route between London and India. At the present time the London mail for Bombay travels by land to Brindsi or Naples; then crosses the Suez canal and reaches Bombay in fourteen days and sixteen hours. After the Bagdad road is in operation letters will be sent to Constantinople direct in three days. The distance from there to the Persian gulf will be covered in two days and twelve hours; that from Kadhima to Bombay in four days and twenty-two hours, ten days and ten hours all told, a gain of four days and six hours.

In conclusion, let me point out that the new Bagdad route follows closely in the direction of the most ancient caravan road. The barbarians destroyed this route and the people of the west discovered a new pne around the southwest corner of Africa. Then came a third highroad to the east, the Sucz canal. When the Bagdad route is finished it will be possible to travel in tifteen days from Paris to China, or in twelve days from Berlin to Calcutta. VON DER GOLTZ.

SNOW MAKES PURE AIR.

Experiments Show that Dry Conditions Are Detrimental to Health.

Chicago Evening Post.

Deputy Health Commissioner Reilly and City Chemist Gehrmann have been experimenting on the cleansing effect of the enowfall of Jan. 21 on the atmosphere for the purpose of ascertaining to what extent the dry conditions from October to January were responsible for the prevalence of disease germs. The result of these experiments is interesting, as it shows the atmosphere was 90 per cent. purer after the snowfall than before. In the weekly health bulletin Dr. Reilly says on this matter: "Jan. 18 shallow glass dishes containing the usual preparation favorable to the growth of atmospheric germs were exposed to the air for three minutes in ten different south Water, State and Adams street and Fifth avenue. After seventy-two hours of incubation these showed an average of 630 colonies of growing germs-the greatest number, 1,050, being found at Dearborn and Washington streets, a few feet above the court between the City Hall and the county building, and the next fewest, 335, on the roof of the City Hall, about 130 feet above the street level. Jan. 21 snow fell to the equivalent of 1.28 of an inch of rain, and the experiment was repeated on the 22d. The everage colonies from these latter exposures numbered sixty-six, ranging from nineteen, at La Salle and South Water streets, to 180 at Washington and Fifth avenue. The atmosphere was nearly 90 per purer on Wednesday after the snow cent. purer on Wednesday after the snow-fall than it was before. # The New "Gibson" Waist

MONDAY MORNING this simple and effective new bodice will get its first showing in Indianapolis. It is the shirtwaist authoritatively proclaimed as a model which is to dominate fashions for 1902. Such a fact has a pleasant significance to Americans, for Gibson is an American artist, probably the most gifted of all in his favorite medium-pen and ink. Typified by numerous drawings his American girl is a tall, squareshouldered and dignified person of much beauty and self-confidence. She is the sort of woman one is proud to recognize as truly American. Isn't it well that the long, square shoulders of this type should find expression in a garment also characteristically American-the shirt waist.

Make a point of seeing this week's display on our second floor. All fashionable materials are representedmoire and Louisine silk, pique, India linen and mercerized cottons, colored canvas, madras and the like-a comprehensive collection.

February's Splendid Show of

It is the greatest in years, and in some respects the most attractive. France once more asserts her silk supremacy in two ways. Her foulards are distinctly different from those of American printing and decidedly new in design; then among novelties those of French origin have a smack of smartness emphatically chic. We've all tired of the assertive rustle of taffeta, and right here the Frenchman has come to our relief. New silks from across the sea include, besides, the soft clinging foulards of Liberty satin, many pretty designs in Louisine and some decidedly handsome pongees embroidered in a most tastefu! manner. Happy to show them, of course.

THE LATEST WEAVES IN

Wool weavers have been bold. Heretofore one has considered the wool gown as one of utility rather than beauty alone. But this season utility steps back for art, and we find spring woolens sheer to the point of frailty, brilliant with interwoven silk, and in many cases almost as open in texture as grenadine. It is a happy change, and one that will win the patronage of many who have in the past considered silk the only material for one's best gown.

The Past Week's Cotton Arrivals

The display booths in our east aisle are abloom with delicate color. Sheer cottons of appealing beauty and silk-mixed fabrics printed in colors rivaling nature herself speak for the season ahead. They tell of new possibilities for continuous and an armondal and an armondal and armondal and armondal and armondal armon the summer gown-a broader art in its design, more elegance, more style, a daintiness heretofore unequaled. This exhibition is for that purpose. You've a right to know what is in store for the future, and we extend the privilege for your selecting now whatever may please your fancy. If you haven't visited these displays we can only ask you again to come; if you have, perhaps these arrivals of the past week will prove an incentive for still more intimate acquaintance with this most comprehensive showing.
